

PERSONALITY ASSESSMENT REPORT

Big Five Personality Inventory (IPIP-50)

PREPARED FOR

Abdul Rahman Azam

Age

N/A

Country

France

University/Organizations

Assessment Date

December 21, 2025

Duration

0.3 minutes

About This Report

This report presents a comprehensive analysis of personality traits based on the Big Five personality model, the most widely accepted and scientifically validated framework in personality psychology. The assessment measures five core dimensions: Extraversion, Agreeableness, Conscientiousness, Neuroticism, and Openness to Experience.

CONFIDENTIAL - This document contains personal assessment results intended for professional and personal development purposes.

Executive Summary

The following charts display your percentile scores across the five major personality dimensions. Percentile scores indicate how you compare to the general population - for example, a score of 75 means you scored higher than 75% of people.

Comparative Overview

E = Extraversion | A = Agreeableness | C = Conscientiousness | N = Neuroticism | O = Openness

Detailed Trait Analysis

Extraversion

Very High

Percentile: 95%

T-Score: 66

Raw Score: 37/50

Measures your tendency to seek stimulation and engage with the external world.

Your Score Indicates: You are outgoing, energetic, and thrive in social situations. You naturally take initiative and enjoy being the center of attention.

Agreeableness

Very Low

Percentile: 1%

T-Score: 26

Raw Score: 21/50

Measures your tendency toward compassion, cooperation, and social harmony.

Your Score Indicates: You are direct, competitive, and prioritize efficiency over harmony. You're comfortable challenging others.

Conscientiousness

Very High

Percentile: 90%

T-Score: 63

Raw Score: 40/50

Measures your tendency toward organization, dependability, and goal-directed behavior.

Your Score Indicates: You are highly organized, disciplined, and reliable. You plan ahead and follow through on commitments.

Neuroticism

Low

Percentile: 39%

T-Score: 47

Raw Score: 20/50

Measures your tendency to experience negative emotions and emotional instability.

Your Score Indicates: You are emotionally stable and resilient. You remain calm under pressure and recover quickly from setbacks.

Openness

High

Percentile: 61%

T-Score: 53

Raw Score: 37/50

Measures your appreciation for art, emotion, adventure, and intellectual curiosity.

Your Score Indicates: You are creative, curious, and open to new experiences. You appreciate art, ideas, and unconventional thinking.

Predicted Outcomes

Based on meta-analytic research correlating personality traits with life outcomes, the following predictions represent statistically-derived estimates. These should be interpreted as general tendencies, not certainties.

Job Performance

75/100

High

Predicts effectiveness in professional roles based on trait patterns.

Academic Performance

88/100

Very High

Predicts success in educational and learning environments.

Leadership Effectiveness

89/100

Very High

Predicts ability to lead, inspire, and manage others effectively.

Personalized Guidance & Recommendations

The following personalized analysis was generated based on your unique personality profile, goals, and current situation. These insights are tailored specifically for you.

Quick Profile Summary

You have a unique blend of very high extraversion and conscientiousness, with very low agreeableness, indicating a charismatic and driven individual who values independence and can come across as assertive. Your low neuroticism suggests you're resilient and less prone to stress. Your average openness indicates a balance between creativity and practicality.

Your Top Strengths

- Your natural charisma and leadership presence make you excel in public speaking and team management.
- Your high energy and enthusiasm motivate others, making you a great fit for roles that require inspiring and guiding teams.
- Your very high conscientiousness helps you stay organized and focused, allowing you to achieve your goals efficiently.

Career Direction

- Best path: Entrepreneurship or freelance work, as it leverages your charisma, leadership skills, and preference for autonomy.
- Specific roles that fit include sales and business development, management and leadership roles, and marketing and public relations, where your extraversion and conscientiousness can shine.

Watch Out For

- Your very low agreeableness may lead to conflicts or difficulties in building harmonious relationships, so it's essential to practice active listening and empathy.
- Your tendency to dominate conversations and overwhelm introverted colleagues requires self-awareness and adjustment to ensure effective teamwork.

ACTION ITEMS Things to Work On

1. Practice active listening: Make a conscious effort to listen without interrupting in at least three conversations per week.
2. Develop emotional intelligence: Engage in self-reflection and journaling to better understand and manage your emotions, improving your relationships with others.
3. Cultivate patience and empathy: Schedule regular check-ins with introverted colleagues or friends to practice understanding and supporting their perspectives.

Final Note

Remember, your unique blend of traits can be a significant strength in your career and personal growth. By being aware of your potential challenges and working on self-improvement, you can leverage your charisma and leadership skills to achieve success and build meaningful relationships.

